

We we preached at a church in the morning then in the afternoon we went to preach at a car show. Later that evening I received this email which I'll share with you because I thought it might be a good teaching moment for us all.

Today on the street in East Tawas I seen and heard your messages of repentance and was glad. I know we are in the end days and your boldness for Christ will be rewarded. I smiled at Sister Aman only to be looked back at with a shameful look and the shaking of her head. When my husband and I left I told him how much it bothered me I can only assume she saw my tattoos and judged me from my outward appearance. I am very grateful for what your doing but please remember there are some who are saved that may not look like it to you. I didn't feel love in that look or good about the shameful shaking of the head. I have to stand before Jesus and give an account for my life he is my only judge. I am born again. Please be kind you have no idea what people are going through especially me. I find it very difficult these days to remain here I would rather be with the Lord. God bless you on your journey 🙏

Here is my answer to her.....

Hello, sister Aman here.

Since you didn't explain the whole scenario, I can only guess that you might be the husband/wife that walked by me by the RR tracks, the husband addressed me, I answered and then preached about Christ. They stopped a ways away from me and the woman said something about loving Jesus and my response was that we can't be part of the world and culture if we're of Christ. She said something that I couldn't hear and was turning away to walk off. I pointed to my good ear (I'm deaf in the other) and shook my head because I can't hear someone that doesn't want to come over and talk but walks away.

Was that you?

Or maybe you were one of the many women who were in the middle of the shiny idol and idle car show, participating in the unfruitful things of the world, smiling at us (with many laughing). If I was shaking my head, it would be in sorrow over all the shameful sins people were participating in.

If you wanted to talk and have a conversation, I would have gone over the gospel with you. So many people are deceived with a false gospel so I would have loved you in the truth and I'll do it here.

You must have faith in Christ who was fully God, fully man who died and shed His blood for the remission of sins. Hebrews 11:1

To get that remission of sins, you must repent, which means a changing and turning of your mind to leave all sin, lose your life and be willing to obey Him. Luke 13:3

If that happens, you'll be born again and by the power of the Holy Spirit, you'll obey and follow after Christ through the Word, leaving your old life behind. John 3:3

Then you endure in the saving faith until your end. Matthew 24

You can see it all here in detail and test yourself to it as I encourage all women that I communicate with.

As for tattoos, I have some that I got before I was born again 17 years ago but they are covered for the glory of God. I used to be a wicked, worldly, harlot dressed, crazy feminist, but the gospel, the truth, changed my life and I'm no longer the person I was then. If you're changed on the inside, you have fruits to show on the outside as a new creation. 2 Corinthians 5:17

John 15:8 Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples.

You mentioned that some people might be saved but not look like me. You mean, biblically head covered and biblically dressed like the scriptures command godly women to cover the temple of the Holy Spirit? The only reasons a woman claiming to be born again won't cover her head or body, is that maybe she's brand new to the faith, she's in rebellion and doing things her way or she's a false convert (which is why I tell women to examine themselves as we all commanded to do). Are you brand new in the faith?

You mention to be kind..... I'm very kind and loving, so loving that my husband I sold all we have to live out in the world, loving our neighbor by preaching the gospel and helping seekers find truth every day.

That's what my husband and I were doing today.

I saw a lot of people today that "claimed" to be Christians, but I saw none that were out preaching the gospel to save their lost neighbors. I did see a lot of them wandering around looking and acting like the world in pride and vanity, indulging in the flesh and not redeeming the time for the Lord.

You claim to be born again.... Were you out there in those crowds sharing the truth? Loving your neighbor by preaching the gospel? Or were you participating in all that Satan has to offer in his kingdom?

I'm here to help you lose their life for Christ and my husband is here for your husband.

God be praised.

Sister Aman

If she replies, I'll place it here with my response. I hope she repents and I'm here to help her if she wants to be a godly, holy woman.
